SCINTILLA - XXIII

“Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart.” – Colossians 3:23 (Bible)

Dear Parents, Teachers & Students,

Learning is not attained by chance; it must be sought with ardour and attended to with diligence. As we witnessed the Infinity Expo 2025 – Beyond the Book and Boundaries, I am sure you were impressed by the talent, creativity, and innovation displayed by our students. They have proven that “the sky is not the limit; it's just the beginning.”

As we nurture the next generation of thinkers, innovators, philosophers, and leaders, it is essential to foster a love for learning that extends beyond the classroom. We believe that curiosity is the spark that ignites a lifelong passion for discovery and growth. To stimulate children's passion and creativity, it is important to provide them with the freedom to explore their interests and pursue their ideas.

Kudos to you, dear teachers, for weaving together an unforgettable exhibition. Your passion for education shines brightly, inspiring students to explore, create, and innovate. You have crafted an engaging experience that sparks curiosity and fuels young minds.

Bravo to our brilliant young innovators! Your projects, creativity, and passion shine a light on a future filled with promise and potential.

As you begin your holidays:

- Unleash the spark within you, ignite your passion, challenge your limits, and grow by learning new skills.
- Understand the difference between needs and wants – basic financial literacy matters.
- Set small daily goals and track your progress.
- Learn how to plant seeds, water them right, and care for the plant.
- Learn to make your own breakfast, snacks, or simple meals.

Yes, dear children, enjoy your holidays...

Relax, Recharge, and Reinvent yourself. Come back with fresh energy and purpose.

“The best preparation for tomorrow is doing your best today.” – H. Jackson Brown

SCHOOL - WHERE LESSONS MEET LIFE

School, a place of dreams and light,
Where minds take wings and hearts take flight.
Books and chalk, the classroom's gentle glow,
A world of knowledge, where our spirits grow.

Laughter echoes through the halls,
Learning dances, answering joyful calls.
From dawn to dusk, the lessons flow,
Seeds of wisdom in our hearts they sow.

Teachers guide with patient, loving hands,
Showing us life's vast and wondrous lands.
Friends by our side, with laughter and cheer,
Together we conquer every fear.

The playground beckons, a world of fun,
Where games are played beneath the warm sun.
But soon the bell rings, and we must part,
Our minds enriched, our hearts now start.

School, a journey, not just a place,
A path to dreams we all must chase.
In every lesson, every page we turn,
We build our future, step by step, we learn.

YOU ARE AMAZING

Fragility dissolves like morning mist
As you rise from each challenge with a stronger goal.
Scars of the past begin to heal
When you listen to the whispers of your soul.

Defenses crumble, and your heart opens wide
As you extend your hands in love and by being kind.
Envy's dark shadow fades away
When you shed the weight of ego's pride.

Indifference melts like winter's snow
As empathy's warmth awakens in your heart.
Love's flame ignites, pure and true
When you see the world through others' eyes, anew.

In this sacred space, you discover your might
When love's transformative power takes flight.
You are a radiant being, shining bright
When you realize that love conquers all, and all is right.

PHONE ADDICTION

The glow of screens, so bright and clear,
Promises a world both far and near.
Yet, we're trapped side by side, unaware,
Knowing we've been shaped by corporate care.

Tired of being sold and directed,
We rise up, our collective voice projected.
I've finally realized the truth profound,
People are prisoners of their phones, bound.

That's why they're called "cell phones," a subtle bind,
A reminder of our digital confinement's design.

THE BEAUTY OF CHILDHOOD

Little kids, happy and bright,
Play with toys, with all their might.
They laugh and run, with joyful sound,
Their smiles shine bright, all around.

They play outside, in sun and rain,
And dream of magic, with hearts that gain
Strength and wonder, with each new day,
Their eyes are wide, with glee, in every way.

They love to play, wild and free,
Growing and learning, with each new spree.
Their laughter echoes, joyful and clear,
A happy childhood is always near.

They bring us joy, with their sweet face,
And fill our hearts with love and a warm, safe space.
Their childhood magic is a treasure rare,
A precious gift, beyond compare.

HEY SCINTILLA!

Oh Scintilla, we've often wondered,
What secrets lie within your pages, plundered?
Many times, we've asked ourselves the same,
What hidden knowledge resides within your name?

We've come to realize that you're a spark,
A tiny ember that ignites a greater mark.
You're a shining reflection of our school's pride,
A beacon that guides us, side by side.

You collect our stories, our memories, and our dreams,
And put them into words, a treasure to extremes.
You depict our efforts, our passions, and our might,
And showcase them to the world, in all their light.

With meticulous care, you edit and refine,
Ensuring that our works and efforts are safely aligned.
In your pages, our voices are heard and seen,
A testament to your dedication, a magazine serene.

SOMETIMES

Sometimes, you just have to go with the flow.
Sometimes, you just have to let it go.
Sometimes, you have to break your heart.
Sometimes, you have to tear yourself apart.

Sometimes, you have to hold your tears.
Sometimes, you have to forget the fear.
Sometimes, you have to face the storm.
Sometimes, you have to find a way to form.

Sometimes, you have to confront your guilt,
For mistakes you've made, or so you've been told.
Sometimes, you have to forgive others,
For the peace that was once a part of your inner self.

Don't hold yourself so tight,
What if change happens, and brings you delight?

COUNSELLOR'S CORNER

Family is the cornerstone of our lives, offering love, care, support, and a sense of belonging. However, family relationships can sometimes be complex and challenging to navigate. The dynamics between parents and children are crucial in shaping a child's emotional, social, and psychological growth. A strong, positive relationship with parents can greatly benefit a child's self-esteem and overall well-being, while strained or negative interactions can lead to emotional distress, behavioural issues, and other challenges.

Parents may not always realize how their actions can deeply affect their child's personality. For instance, frequent argument or tension between parents can create anxiety and stress in children. Major changes in family structure, like divorce, separation, or the loss of a parent, can cause feelings of insecurity and make it hard for children to adjust.

Strengthening family bonds and rebuilding relationships is essential for fostering a healthy environment. It's crucial to prioritise family time over work or other distractions. Simple acts like having at least one meal together as a family can go a long way in creating a supportive, loving atmosphere.

For parents:

- Listen to your children without interrupting or dismissing their feelings.
- Encourage open discussions without criticism.
- Be involved in your child's life without over-controlling.
- Express appreciation for their efforts, not just results.
- Lead by example - practice what you want your children to learn.

For children:

- Share your thoughts and concerns with your parents without shutting them out.
- Show gratitude for their efforts, even in small ways.
- Understand that parents' concerns often come from love and care.
- Try to see things from their perspective just as you want them to understand yours.
- Communicate calmly, even when you disagree.

Let's embrace each other's efforts, grow together, and create a home where love, respect, and positivity thrive. Together, we can make our family relationships more meaningful, and bring out the best in each other.
